dedication . . .

our future

Corridors '55 is respectfully dedicated to our future — to the future of our Alma Mater, Sir George Williams College, and to the future of the Class of 1955.

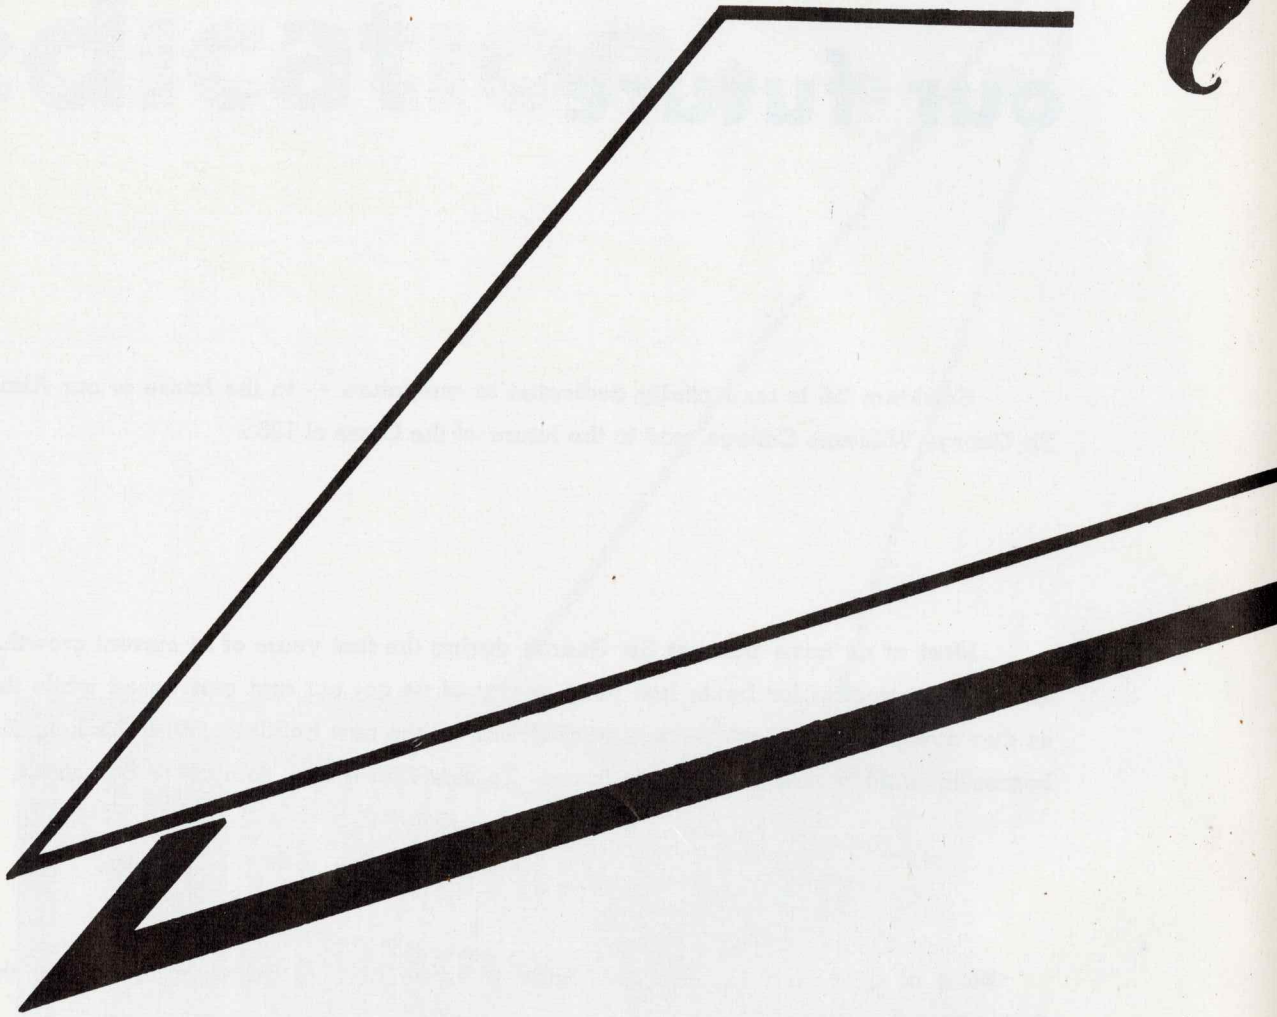

Most of us have been at Sir George during the first years of its current growth. During the giant campaign for funds last year, many of us got out and canvassed while the rest of us dug down deep into our pockets to shell out for the new building. With this help Sir George begins to build a new and bigger future. To this future this Annual is dedicated.

Most of us began to plan and build a future here at Sir George. It is to this future that this Annual is dedicated.

Let us hope that these futures, well started and well planned, are as successful as we all have hoped for.

message from the

In saying good-bye to the class of '55, I am saying farewell to an era at Sir George Williams College. When next year's class comes up for graduation the new building will be ready, we will have taken possession, and in all probability we will have fully occupied its more spacious corridors and classrooms. The days of scattering among seven annexes on Drummond and Stanley Streets will be over, and once more we will be concentrated under our own roof.

For all these years we will have been getting along in re-made quarters. Since the educational classes started in the Montreal Y.M.C.A. in 1873, we will have been "making do" with whatever space was available, according to our needs. Sometimes throughout these eighty-three years this space has been pretty good, but always it has been "short". Continually we have been pressing, pressing for more accommodation, larger quarters, more room in which students and faculty could do things.

Now, let us hope that period is temporarily over. It is true, the new building will not provide us with everything we need. But let us hope that it will put an end, temporarily at least, to our eternal quest for space.

It is with considerable regret that we bid farewell to this period of our history. It has been a good era. The student body and the faculty have learned to "make do", to get along with what is available, and with each other. It has been a period of friendliness and good spirit, of co-operation and toleration.

I fervently hope and pray that the next period in our history will be as good.

K. E. Norris,
Principal.

Baccalaureate Address to the Class of 1955

BY

"Be not conformed to this world but be ye transformed by the renewal of your mind."

Romans 12:2

"You have got into a very troublous epoch of the world . . . Look where one will, revolution has come upon us. We have got into the age of revolutions. All kinds of things are coming to be subjected to fire . . . It is evident that whatever is not inconsumable, made of asbestos, will have to be burnt in this world. Nothing other will stand the heat it is getting exposed to."

These are not my words. They were spoken nearly ninety years ago by Thomas Carlyle in his inaugural address as Lord Rector to the students of Edinburgh University on April 2nd, 1866. There may be comfort in this. It shows, if anything, the age of change is not new and that leaders of thought have been warning youth for at least a century (and really much longer) that whatever, as Carlyle quaintly says, is not made of asbestos; will be consumed and perish.

This analogy takes on a sinister significance in our atomic age — as if it were no longer a picturesque comparison but something like a literal fact. However, in spite of its problems, the age of your youth is surely one of transcendent interest and incomparable challenge. Its perplexities constitute a supreme opportunity to those of insight and courage. The world needs all the light and leading it can get and it looks more and more for them to men and women who, rightly or wrongly, are regarded as having trained minds through a university experience.

A modest person may be tempted to suppose that in view of the immensity and complexity of present day life his particular contribution will hardly be worth considering — the individual is lost in the crowd. But this modesty is perilously near to cynicism. It is good to see ourselves and our work in perspective and to realize our own significance, but it is just as necessary to realize our significance. Surely no one ever set forth on a great or heroic mission without believing that it was important. It is the small minds which cannot grasp their significance and the petty souls who are so busy grubbing in the earth that they cannot see the stars — so concerned with the immediate state of their digestive apparatus, their adornment, their habitation, that they do not begin to appreciate the wealth of their own minds or the depth of their own spirits.

So my message to you is a plea to see the importance of your own mission in life. I challenge you to consider the dignity of all life including your own life!

In the second place, may I ask you to consider the eternal purpose of the universe? Recently a friend kindly called my attention to a final paper written by the late Dr. R. C. Wallace, a great Scottish-Canadian geologist and educator and Principal of Queen's University. Dr. Wallace expresses what I want to say to you better than I can.

He wrote: "Education is important. It is still important that we find a consistent and satisfying explanation of the meaning of the universe, and of our purpose and ultimate destiny as human beings. As a scientist, I have not been able to convince myself that the marvellous articulation and adaption both of living things and of inanimate nature can have come itself or through the purely impersonal working of evolutionary laws alone. I feel that there is a mind beyond the visible processes, a fountainhead of all the love and beauty and goodness and truth which we as human beings so imperfectly reflect, a power that gives us freedom of choice, and an eternal hope. We call that power God. No one who truly loves nature can be satisfied that this life is all. For in the contemplation of the sunset or the storm, the minerals in the rock or the brilliance of the butterfly, the mind is caught up into a relationship that is beyond the world of passing things. We reach out into the eternal.

This groping towards a power beyond the things of sense may be too vague to put into the form of a dogma or a creed. That matters less. What does matter is that the sense of the eternal informs our doing and our thinking, that the horizon does not limit our vision, that our mind's eye can pierce beyond the things of sense into the infinity of time and of space, that we rest in the assurance that underneath are the everlasting arms. On that basis and on that basis only, can life have a meaning which will satisfy us. It is on that basis that men and women, weary with the burdens they shoulder, find strength to go on." (from "As I Look Back" by R. C. Wallace.)

Perhaps I should apologize for quoting Dr. Wallace at such length but his words impressed me specially as I know something of his stature as an educator, a scientist and a man. His ideas remind me of a little story I read recently. One day in the latter part of the last century there sat in a railway compartment in France an old man and a young man. The young man was an enthusiastic student of the New Science of his day. The old man, in spite of intelligent appearance was reading a devotional book. When he had finished reading the young man explained to him that such things were really out of date; that God was an archaic concept; that science had now showed that religion was untenable in the face of scientific knowledge. He even offered to send the old man some literature which would prove his point of view and enlighten him on the findings of modern science. On parting he asked for the old man's name and address and was given a card which read "Louis Pasteur, Doctor of Science, Paris." Whether the young man sent the literature or not does not form part of the story but, if he did, it does not seem to have had the desired effect because one of Pasteur's biographers reports that he died on September 27, 1895, holding a cross in his hand.

Of course many things have happened since Pasteur's time. The unremitting progress of science has given us almost "a new heaven and a new earth." But still the mystery remains. The view of the universe of our age shows not one but a myriad of universes — "ten thousand times ten thousand" galaxies stretch away to the infinity of space until they fade out in depths that our ancestors never dreamed of. Likewise the centre of the atom has a complexity and terrific power of which we today are all too vividly aware. But moral values are still supreme. In fact they are desperately vital. You in your day — graduates of this week — will see in your time (I predict) either the final awful triumph of materialism gone wild or an advance to the recognition of man's place under God and his responsibility to God.

Remember the words of the Psalmist — "When I consider the heavens, the work of Thy fingers, the moon and the stars which Thou hast ordained; What is man, that Thou art mindful of him? and the son of man that Thou visitest him? For Thou hast made him a little lower than the angels, and hast crowned him with glory and honour. Thou madest him to have dominion over the works of Thy hands; Thou hast put all things under his feet O Lord, our Lord, how excellent is Thy name in all the earth!"

That is the faith which must triumph and I challenge you today — New Bachelors of Science, Bachelors of Commerce and even Bachelors of Arts — to think pretty seriously about this matter. All over this country, and other countries, graduating classes are being told to go forth to serve. But I would like to throw out the ancient challenge which is our Hebrew-Christian heritage "Choose ye this day whom ye will serve."

Well, next week we go back to work. Of course that's not so different for most of us. We have in this class housewives, school teachers, office managers, accountants, foremen and many others. What difference will your new degrees (and all they imply) make to you? The text that I mentioned at the beginning is not an idle statement nor a pious platitude. It seems to me that it sums up a whole philosophy of education — "Be not conformed to this world but be ye transformed by the renewal of your mind." May I humbly suggest that this renewal should be continuous. Education is valuable only if you keep it up. It disintegrates like a dead plant if it does not have continuous nutrition.

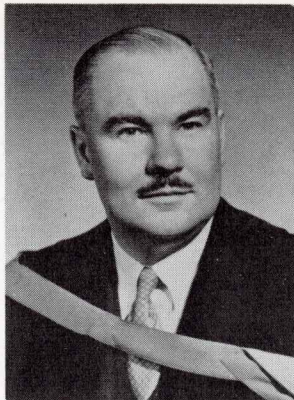

One of the things about which we hear a good deal in our day is the threatened loss of freedom. Of course this is a big subject and freedom is a relative thing. It has been truly said that they who give up freedom for security lose both freedom and security. But freedom on a smaller scale is important. The modern world "squeezes us in." How far-sighted was the writer of this epistle? or else how little the world has really changed! "Be not conformed" he says, "but be ye transformed."

Finally, there is what is called the confusion of the average with the optimum. This is the code of behaviour based on "what most everybody does" or on statistical studies showing that 59% or 62% of the male, (or the female) population does so and so. Away with it! Apparently an average education is not good enough for you and me. We must have a college education. Well then an average code is not good enough we must seek the optimum; not because we are better than other people (for we are not) because we have had greater advantages than others and, therefore, have greater responsibilities.

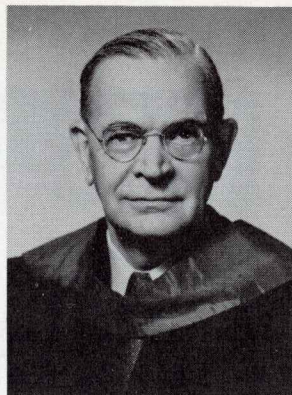

Ulysses says to his little company of fellow adventurers:

"Consider well the seed from which you grew; you were not formed to live like animals but rather to pursue virtue and knowledge." Professor Gilbert Highet, of Columbia University, says that, "there, in a single sentence, is the faith of the Western universities."

And so, my friends, I do not wish you wealth, although I do hope that you will share reasonably in the material prosperity of this great young country which God has so richly endowed. I do not wish you leisure although I fully expect that you will have more opportunity for leisure than previous generations have enjoyed. I do wish you happiness in the greatest sense — a life filled with adventures of the mind and of dedicated service to God and your fellow men. "And be not conformed to the world, but be ye transformed" May God grant it!

Valedictory Address

by John Douglas Rae, B.A.

The founder of the Rhodes Scholarships Cecil John Rhodes once said "that next to entertaining or impressive talk, a thorough-going silence usually manages to impress most people". Although my few words perhaps may prove entertaining, they are certainly not an attempt to impress, — yet I would like to thank my fellow graduates for allowing me the honour of breaking this precious silence to speak on behalf of our graduating class of 1955.

This, of course, is a special occasion. One which brings to a conclusion the individual efforts of all the graduates here. I know in particular of some industrious members of this class who have plugged hard for as long a period as 6, 7, 8 and even 9 years, all their efforts to be brought to a climax in a few short hours of ceremony. I can only hope that the few words they have entrusted me to speak for them, are in some way equal to the occasion. If the words are not, I can only, in good humour, suggest a little story, mentioned in a book about the origin of words, which has stuck in my mind since I read it a few years ago. It tells how the animal name Kangaroo came to the English language. Evidently, when Captain Cook first landed in Australia, one of his crew walked sprightly up to the natives to find out what they called those unusual hopping specimens of the animal world. According to the story he said, "Say Ol' Chap, what do you call those", pointing to a number of kangaroos. The native answered, "Ken Ghar Ooo", which in the native tongue meant, "I do not understand". But the English tar hardly to be outdone, replied, "What's that Mate, Kangaroo you say, well Kangaroo it is" and we had a new word in our language. If my words, in the language of the native, are a little "Ken Ghar Ooo", perhaps they will at least not take you quite as far off the rack as the sailor went in the story.

This is a farewell address. A farewell address to an Alma Mater of which we have grown to be proud, and to which we shall always remain loyal. To an outsider, this assertion of loyalty and pride for an institution which has barely begun to build a wall around its stamping grounds, must give pause to wonder what strength of purpose serves to hold such a large group of students together. It is about this purpose that I would like to speak.

It is some few years since the Y.M.C.A. was founded, but even fewer years since Sir George Williams College had its beginnings; 1926 to be exact. The foresight of the founders of this College, will never cease to amaze me. For it is obvious that during the formative years, the need for a College education was hardly apparent, judging by the fact that the first graduates did not appear until 1936, and then only two in number. No, it was with a sharp appraisal of the future of our country and the community, that those men established an institution at such an early date. But even more, it was the desire to provide the opportunity for individuals with ability, to further the education so necessary to young people, young men and women who would one day decide the future of our Canadian democracy. Yet the even higher purpose was to provide an education, not only of the mind, but of the body, and in spirit; A philosophy of education, new in its time, that would help to mold better persons, for a better world. To the men and women of the Board of Governors and the Faculty of our College, who have kept alive these ideals, we owe much. The influences of their work will long be felt in the world in which we live.

Last term, I came in contact with an individual who is only one of countless examples which illustrate the tremendous work of our Alma Mater. Sitting in class with other students, I managed to strike up an acquaintance with a serious student next to me. He worked hard to understand the subject. Another day at the office, a young lady mentioned that she knew this student and that his wife had just given birth to a lovely baby girl. Somewhat surprised to find out that he was married, for he appeared to be quite young, I asked a few more questions. It was even more startling to learn that he was the father of five children; — but it was his first year at Sir George. To him, and other men and women with similar needs, the door to further achievement and development has been opened. This then is the role of our College. We are its graduates.

We know we are not the first graduates, nor surely the last, but we are the largest class in the history of the College. Well over 300 men and women will receive degrees tonight. A milestone surely, in each of the graduates' lives, but an even greater one for Sir George Williams College.

I suppose, that if we were all asked to sit for an examination in Natural Science 101, we would hardly remember all the details, but we can recall the Dean telling us how geologists, in recording the history of the earth's crust, first segregate the story into eras. The end of each era is brought to a close by a period of tremendous mountain building, and begins the new era in a similar state. Now I would like to present just one analogy. This afternoon, when Mr. F. B. Walls, the President of the Montreal Y.M.C.A., laid the cornerstone for our new building, he brought to a close the first era in the history of this College. A period of building had begun. Thus although we are not the first class in the history of the College, it seems to me, we are the last class of this first era. It is for this reason that this valedictory is dedicated, not to the commendation of the merited work of my fellows, but to the life of a greater institution, of which we are a part.

Yet to be fair to our families and friends sharing tonight's event, they should know, how much, and in what way we have benefited during our sojourn at Sir George. To attempt to describe this briefly is difficult.

The changes in personal development in each of us, are as varied and numerous as the number of graduates here. But let's try. We are graduates because we tried!

You may at first think it my intention, now, to labor over various subjects which we have studied. On the contrary, I would like to suggest that our years of association with college life, have instilled in us much different qualities, far more important and close to our basic needs of the future. Be we Arts, Science, or Commerce graduates, we have all been affected by the same College purposes. Influences born with, and developed within a profound philosophy of education.

We have learned that change is continuous. That just as an institution must bend to follow the path of social progress, so the individual must work to keep abreast of the greater changes resulting from the social activity around him.

We have been endowed over these years with a spirit and will to win, and perhaps only after tonight, will we fully appreciate, that the fruits of labour are reaped by those that sow the seeds and care for the crop.

We have been given the chance to seek higher levels of personal achievement and self-expression. The life we now lead takes up beyond the confines of narrow-mindedness to a fuller and richer experience.

In the natural sciences we have been aroused to the growing complexities of finite matter and introduced to the vastness of creation in a universe without a boundary. On moral issues and problems of philosophic root, we have been shown early and contemporary thought. The only limit to the education provided, was set by the limits of our own capacity.

One of the fundamental principles of good leadership, is summed up in the following quotation:—

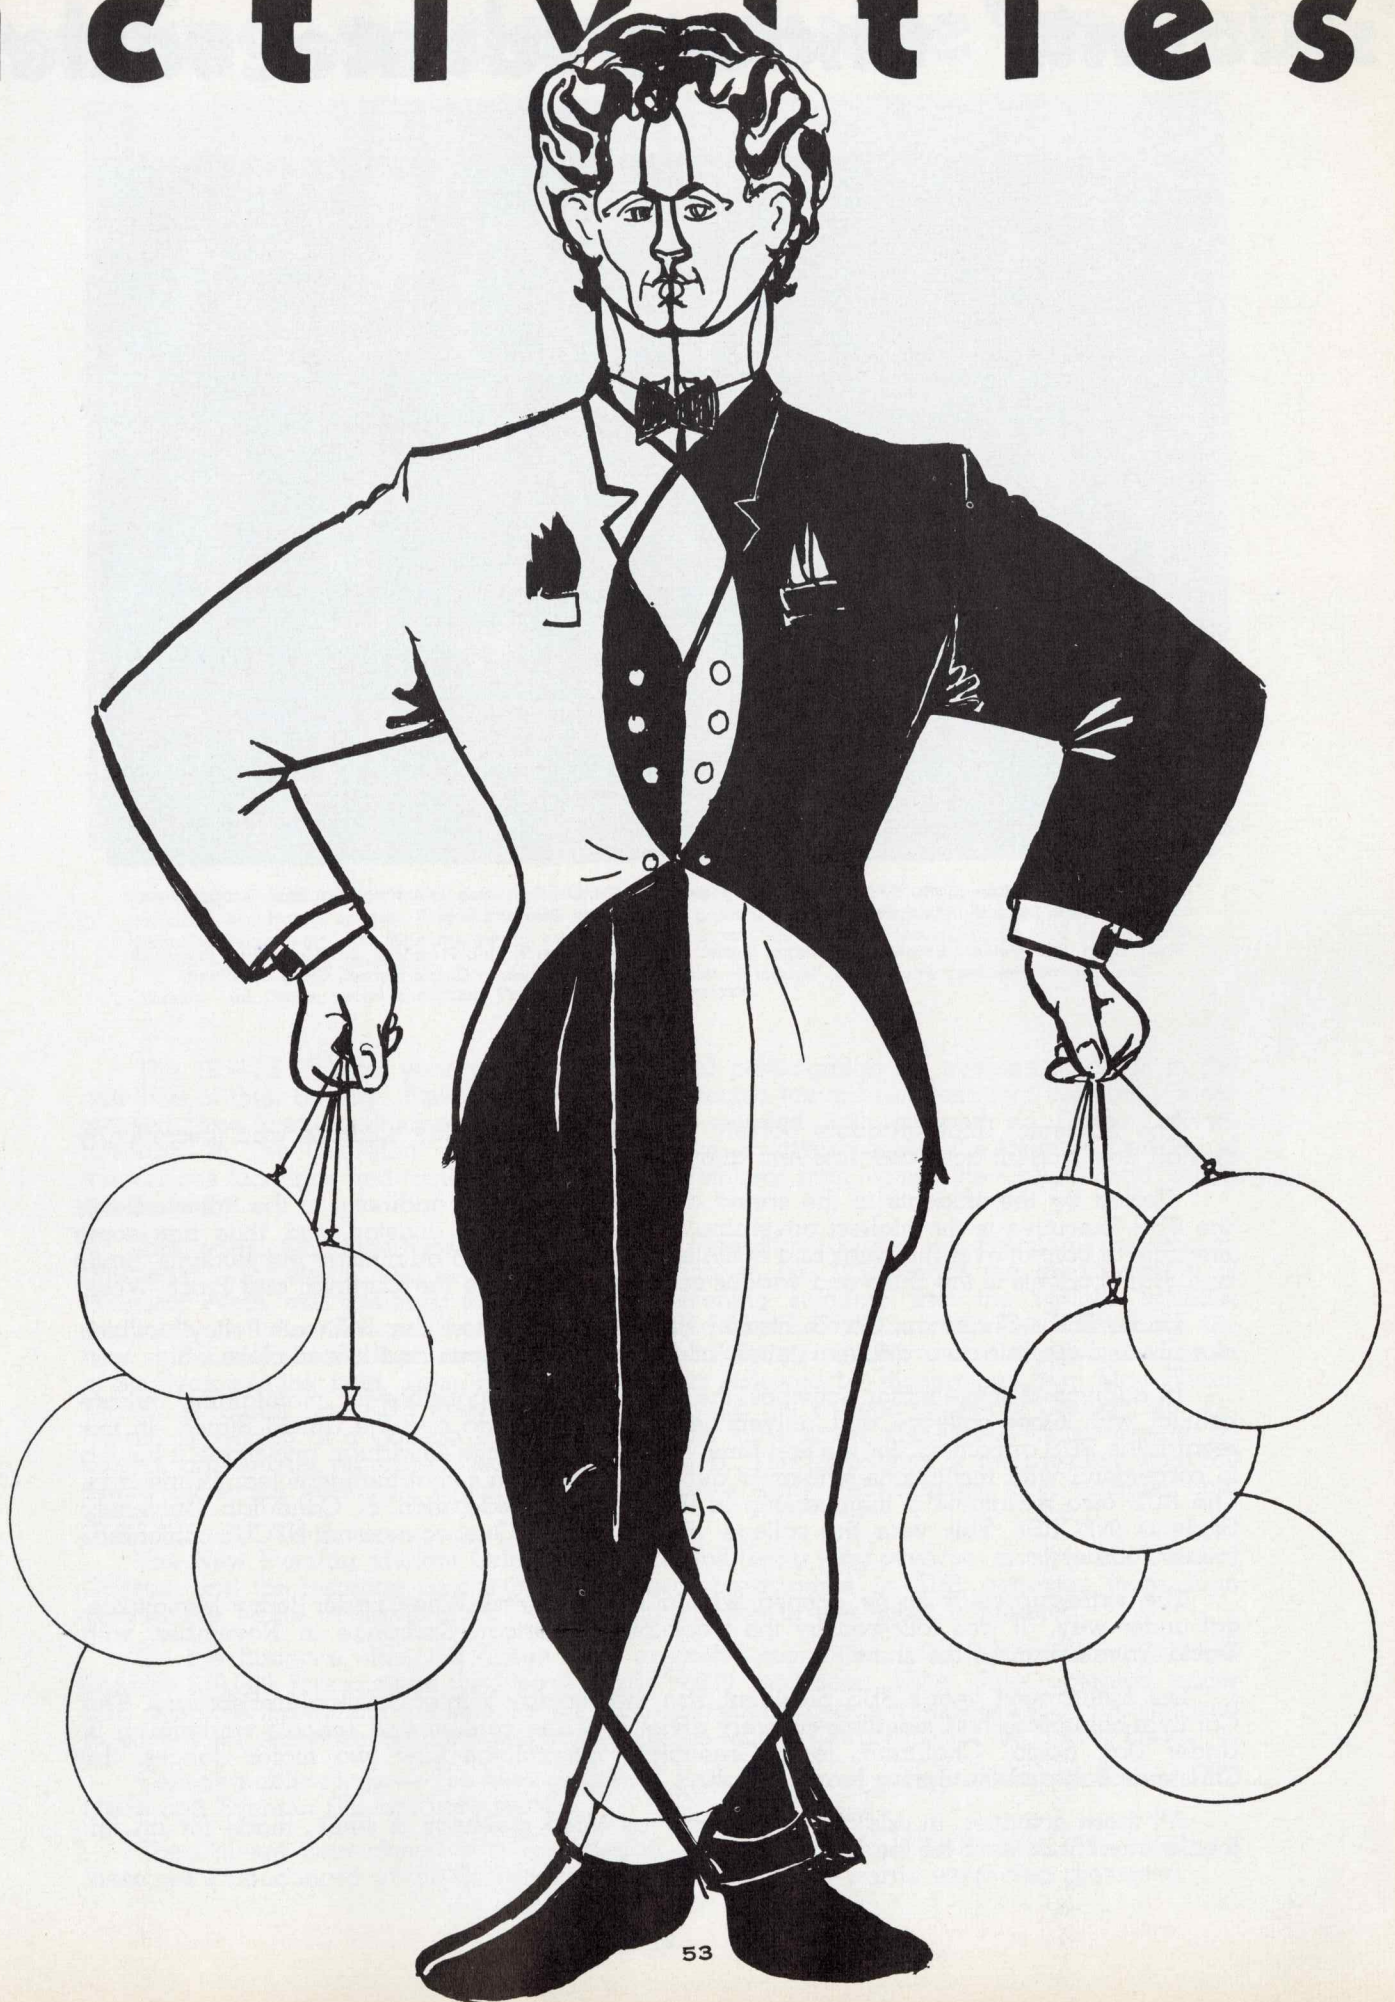

But of a good leader,
When his job is done, his aim fulfilled,
They will all say, — we did this ourselves.

These words are a translation of the Chinese philosopher, Laotzu, who is believed to have lived 400 years B.C. To-night we graduates feel, we did this ourselves. But did we alone? It is not as likely, that from the date we were allowed to register at Sir George, this fine institution has been fulfilling a responsibility to us!

Earlier, I mentioned a purpose of our Alma Mater; "to provide the opportunity for those of ability". We accepted the opportunity. Our College, fulfilled its responsibility. From here on, we must fulfill ours. For it is only by proving the worth of our education that the final aim of its founders will be attained; "to build better persons, in a better world".

One of the earliest Valedictorians of this College said this, "Sir George, or its graduates, have not yet had time to make history", which at that early date, was true. But since then over 2300 graduates have given us a record to be proud of, our College has a long history, and I hope, that some of the graduates of this class of 1955, may live to record it.

The Students' Undergraduate Society Executive, thirteen day students who theoretically run all day student activities, has had another busy year.

Elected by the students in the spring and with four more additions in the fall elections; the SUS Executive is the highest governing body in the day division and thus has some measure of control over the clubs and activities. Its big job is to administer the students' funds and grant budgets to the clubs and various committees such as the Carnival and Frosh Week.

Under Clubs Chairman, Carole Fischel, the SUS formulated the "Clubs" Policy", which classified clubs into five different types and also defined open and closed clubs.

In addition to these major activities, the executive is responsible for maintaining outside contact with other colleges and universities, both in Canada and the United States. In this regard, the SUS appointed, for the first time, an External Affairs Chairman and made it his job to correspond with institutions similar to our own. This year's chairman was Jean Branchaud. The SUS also maintains a membership in the National Federation of Canadian University Students (NFCUS). This year the college was host to the Quebec regional NFCUS conference in late February.

The extra-curricular scene opened with a bang as Frosh Week, under Jimmy Manolagos, got under way. It was followed by the week-long American Exchange in November, with David Novak running the show.

Les Melia, next year's SUS president, ran the two-day Winter Carnival in February. The Carnival committee had members of every division of the college and schools working on it. Under Day Social Chairman, Jerry Greenblatt, the college saw two major dances, the Christmas Ball and the Spring Prom run, off.

All these activities, in addition to as many as three meetings a week, made for an immense amount of work for the day executive.

evening undergraduate society

Absent: Len Cooke, social chairman; Rolanda Kursner, secretary.

The 1954-55 College year witnessed increased participation by evening students in the activities of their Society. Executive policy was directed toward rejuvenation; the newly inaugurated New Evening Student Orientation Night, coupled with stepped up Evening News coverage in The Georgian, did much to stimulate an awareness in the Evening Division of the various functions and facilities available to members both within the College and within the Society.

The realization of the New Evening Student Orientation Night was the season's first accomplishment. This event, held in Budge Hall on October 1st, 1954 under the chairmanship of Professor Peets, was designed to acquaint new evening students with the various facilities available to them through the College and EUS. Dean Hall, in officially welcoming the new students to the College, stressed the value of Evening education and the prominent role of Sir George in this field. Dean Hall's address was followed by illustrations from Mag Flynn, Mr. D. D. Smith and EUS President Ian Murphy on the various phases of College life. Dr. Norris, appearing at a College function for the first time since his illness, was warmly received, and briefly reiterated Dean Hall's welcome. The formalities of the evening were followed by social festivities, which included a Club's Rally, refreshments, and dancing until midnight.

The New Evening Student Orientation Night fulfilled a long overdue 'must' in the Evening College, and the resulting new high of freshman participants in EUS activities more than proved the value of the project. Yearly continuation of this event is planned.

On the financial side, the fifteen man executive committee of the EUS handled a budget of some $10,000, representing the fees of nearly 2,000 members. Nine clubs operated under EUS auspices throughout the session; the EUS also subscribed to a wide athletic program, and to such Joint Activities as the Christmas Ball, the Winter Carnival, and the Spring Prom.

College publications — The Georgian, and Prism — were also subscribed to by EUS funds and Evening Student participation.

The College year closed with the election of officers for the 1955-56 term. The results of these were announced at the Spring Prom, where the EUS Awards were also presented.

Things were bigger and better everywhere this year, and the Freshman Reception Program was more evidence of that fact.

There were five days of activities well planned by Jim Manolakos and his committee. The first day saw the frosh welcomed by members of the faculty. At the same time they received their caps and ribbons, which they had to wear constantly for the next five days, until officially accepted as regular students.

The remaining days of initiation were taken up by painting and washing Boys Clubs, to help the Red Feather Agencies holding a Fun Parade in the downtown district, which included playing scrabble on the corner of Mansfield and St. Catherine Streets; going to a tea dance; and taking part in the Frosh Parade.

Although the day of the parade was a rainy one it failed to dampen the spirits of the students, and was a great success.

Frosh week ended officially on Saturday, October 9th at the Frosh Dance which took place at Victoria Hall.

After the great success of last year's American Exchange Program, it was decided by this year's S.U.S. executive to hold a similar event this year, and thus establish it as a permanent part of the extra-curricular program at Sir George Williams College.

To head the Committee, the executive elected David Novek, a second year arts student, who had served on the previous exchange committee. Novek rounded up a planning committee of nine, who met early in September and laid the foundation of the program. When the school year commenced, a committee of some sixty people helped mould this planning into reality.

Between November 16 and November 21, thirty-one students, from Columbia University, Erie County Technical Institute, Niagara University, Russell Sage College, Sienna College, University of Rochester, and Union College, were guests of the day student body of Sir George Williams College. They were made welcome to Montreal, and S.G.W.C. by R. P. Buttrick, the Consul General of the United States in Montreal; Dr. K. E. Norris the Principal of S.G.W.C.; and Bernie Dezwirek, the President of the Students' Undergraduate Society.

Highlights of the program were; a tour of the city, including a visit to the mayor's office, during which all present signed the 'Golden Book of Honour'; a trip to Ottawa, which included a tour of Parliament, lectures by various government officials, and a luncheon tendered by the students of Carlton College; and a banquet on Friday evening at the Reform Club, at which the guest speaker was Mr. Claude Richardson, M.P.

The visitors also attended lectures on the different aspects of Canadian Culture given by members of the staff of the College. To help them remember their trip to Canada, each American was given an envelope containing a great amount of literature pertaining to Canada.

Social events were not forgotten, and there were many opportunities for the students of both countries to meet each other. The highlight of the social events was "Une Journée à la Canadienne" on Saturday, when the program adjourned to Oka for a day of fun and frolicking, in the atmosphere of French-Canada.

The Carnival was held as a three day affair, this year, with an Athletics Evening on Wednesday, February 9th, followed by a dance in Budge Hall. Crowning of the 1955 Carnival Queen was held at the Loyola College Auditorium, between periods of the Ottawa-St. Lawrence Valley CIAU Conference hockey teams of Loyola Warriors and the Georgians.

Dr. Norris, making his first official evening venture out since his illness, in his capacity as Principal of the College, and Mrs. Norris, cut the ribbon at center ice to officially open the Carnival. This part of the Carnival took place Friday night, February 11th.

Saturday, February 12th, was very cold, with high winds and even higher snow drifts. However, most of the athletic events which had been planned for the day of activity on Mount Royal were run off, though they did start a little late.

Saturday evening, following the activity on the mountain, featured a Torchlight Parade, led by a float carrying the Carnival Queen, which wound its way down the mountain to the Regiment de Chateauguay Armoury, where a mammoth Carnival Dance wrote "finis" to another successful Georgian Winter Carnival.

EDITORIAL BOARD

During the past academic year, The Georgian has been one of the most active organizations in the extra-curricular scene. As the student-run newspaper of Sir George Williams College, it has rendered constant service to all college students in both the day and evening divisions. Publishing regularly throughout 21 weeks of the college year, The Georgian has just completed its 18th year in the college newspaper field. The Georgian is an eight page tabloid size weekly with a circulation of approximately 2900. The staff of the paper is entirely recruited on a volunteer basis. These volunteer journalists perform the many tasks associated with newspaper work without any form of remuneration save the self-satisfaction of a job well done. This year nearly 34 persons availed themselves of the opportunity to work on The Georgian. To these persons is due all the credit for the weekly appearance of The Georgian on the stands. During the past year much has been accomplished in the way of improvement on The Georgian.

In retrospect, these changes have done much to facilitate working conditions on the paper thereby making it more attractive for future staffers. As usual the Editorial Board was the mainstay of the paper—always ready to hold meetings at odd hours and to part with invaluable advice in time of difficulty. All changes effected this year were channelled through this Board. Our first improvement involved the technical side of The Georgian. After close preliminary study by the Editor-in-Chief and the Managing Editor, it was decided to modify the general layout of the paper. This was duly done commencing with the issue of February 8, 1955. It was therefore very gratifying to us to learn that the Kerner Award was won by the lead article in this particular issue. The changes involved the changing of some pages to more logical positions and the streamlining throughout of the general layout.

Another important change was effected constitutionally. The former Constitution of The Georgian was revamped to include certain more positive clauses and to eliminate certain ambiguous ones. It has always been the aim of The Georgian to insure that the paper can never be "influenced" directly or indirectly by student leaders. In this way The Georgian takes a neutral stand and can criticize at a more effective level. This year's Editorial Board were therefore very pleased when the Student Council upheld the position of The Georgian by passing the Constitution. The new Constitution is thus an admirable safeguard to all readers in both divisions that a certain minimum standard of journalism will be always assured. It is well to point out that The Georgian has been well complimented for the high standard of the work by both professionals and by other college papers.

What about The Georgian in the future? If managed accordingly, there is no reason why The Georgian cannot become one of the greatest college papers in Canada. This may sound like an exaggerated statement but in the face of sound planning and hard work it cannot fail to become a reality.

university contingents

The purpose of the University Reserve Training Units of the Armed Forces is to train young officers for the future defence of Canada in time of war. All three services — Navy, Army and Air Force — sponsor programmed officer-cadet training for students in their undergraduate years. Successful completion of these training courses, which comprise regular instructional drills during the College session coupled with full-time summer duty at Regular Force bases, leads to commissioning in the Reserve Force.

All of the service units are represented on the Georgian campus — Sir George Naval Cadets forming part of the University Naval Training Divisions of H.M.C.S. "Donnacona", while Army officer-cadets function as an individual contingent of the Canadian Officers' Training Corps, and Flight-Cadets (RCAF) operate as a Reserve Flight of the University Reserve Training Plan.

A successful year of activity was witnessed by all units, being highlighted perhaps by the performance of Sir George U.N.T.D. Cadets who, in competition with their confreres from all other Universities and Colleges in the Montreal area took top honours at the Annual Inspection and Prize-giving by Vice-Admiral E. R. Mainguy, Chief of Naval Staff. Leading Georgian prize-winners at this event were Cadet F. Abbott, who was awarded the Commanding Officer's Dirk for the Best All-Round Cadet, and Cadet W. Zaslawsky, who won the Best First-Year Cadet Prize.

President: Reuben Wekselman

Organized in 1951, the Pre-Medical and Pre-Dental Society is designed to acquaint all students interested in Medicine, or Dentistry, and their related fields, with a requisite knowledge of the educational and professional requirement of medical training through lectures, films, discussions and tours.

Due to hard work and sound planning by the executive, the Society emerged as the top club on the Campus to win the much-coveted "Clubs' Trophy" for "the outstanding club". Many constitutional changes and policies were innovated this year, including the selection of Mr. D. D. Smith as official advisor.

Top films such as "Plastic Surgery" and "Dentistry" were shown and guest speakers were: Mr. D. D. Smith, "Psychology and Psychiatry"; Dr. Adams, "The Practice of Psychiatry"; and Mr. Judge, "Rehabilitation".

Studies were also made on the subject of Child-birth and its various aspects and the rehabilitation of handicapped people. Tours were taken to hospitals and the Rehabilitation Centre for Cripples. The Society also had several programmes in conjunction with the CIC.

The outstanding project of the year was the organization of the Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic at the College at which blood donations reached a new high, here, due to the concentrated efforts of all the members.

LITERARY SOCIETY

President: George Holmes

The Literary Society is a Joint Day and Evening Club whose basic aim is to stimulate an interest in world literature and creative writing.

In the 1954-55 season, it has encouraged a large number of students to write and has given them an outlet in "Prism", the first literary magazine in the College. Group discussions, which in one instance criticized the creative writings of the students, gave the tangible audience which is most important to the creative writer if he is to believe in what he is doing.

Creating an interest in world literature was done by other ways: a varied lecture program gave insight into Canadian, French-Canadian, American and European Literature; a newly-established record project gave the opportunity of hearing professional readings of poetry and prose.

ASIAN STUDY GROUP

Co-Chairmen: James Jones (Day)
Jack Poirier (Evening)

The Asian Study Group was organized for the first time this year by a group of Day and Evening Students who felt the need for a greater awareness and understanding of the Asian outlook and attitude.

The aims and purposes of the Group are as follows:

- (a) To promote the study of Asian Culture and its contribution to World History.
- (b) To seek to stimulate interest in Asian Culture through the sponsoring or organizing of lectures, films, discussions and other similar activities.
- (c) To impart to students an awareness of the vital part played by Asia in world affairs, from both a current news and an historical point of view.
- (d) Specifically, the Group offers to students an insight into the Philosophical, Social, and Political aspects of Asia.

Meetings were held three times every two months, and took the form of discussion groups and film nights. Films were shown on such countries as India, Pakistan, Indonesia, China, Korea and Japan. Guest speakers included the Rev. Tsuji on "Buddhism", and Mr. Chandra on "The Asian View".

B'NAI B'RITH HILLEL COUNSELLORSHIP

President: Carole Fischel

Operating on the Sir George Campus for the past 9 years, the Hillel Counsellorship is one of 200-odd such Jewish student organizations throughout the World, providing a programme of religious, social, cultural and service activities. Hillel seeks to foster the survival values of the Jewish heritage, stimulate interest in Judaism and its affiliated institutions, promote leadership, encourage inter-religious and cultural harmony with all students on the Campus.

Hillel reached a new high in their scope of activities and generated much interest among all students. Programmes ranging from speakers, study groups, debates, seminars and musicales were held at Sir George and at Hillel House. This year saw 150 students from 14 American and Canadian Universities attend a four day conference, co-sponsored by Sir George Hillel on "The Dimensions of Jewish Living". Guest speakers included: both National Hillel Directors; Will Herberg; Judge Harry Batshaw; Mr. D. Rome; Ludwig Lewisohn; and John Roy Carlson. Alexander Brott, Mr. E. Jospe and a concert rounded out the musicales while Sabbath and religious services including luncheons and lectures were held regularly. Hillel organized the "Music of The Faiths" and partook in Brotherhood Week.

Several new policies were innovated this year including the organization of the "Used Book-Sale" as a service to the general student body.

CERCLE FRANÇAIS

President: Yves Decarie

Cercle Francais, a Day Club, added this year to its reputation as one of the most active clubs in the College. This year's program included a guest appearance by Nicole Germain, French T.V. artist, in December; a Winter Sleigh Ride; presentation of French Folk songs by Breboeuf College Glee Club, held in Budge Hall in March; and a guest speech by Mr. L. L. Savard on: "The Province of Quebec".

To further its aim of promoting an understanding of the French Language and Culture, the Club also held showings every week. Two films were shown at each session — one in English and one in French.

In addition to its regular meetings and activities, the Club also contributed to general activities within the College, by sponsoring a Christmas Party, working on Winter Carnival organization, and by acting as hosts on a "Day in the Country" for our American guests during American Student Exchange Week.

CHEMICAL INSTITUTE OF CANADA

President: Roger Roten

The Sir George student chapter of the C.I.C. is one section of a nation-wide organization which has chapters located in all main cities and colleges of Canada. It was organized to acquaint students with the various branches of professional chemistry, as well as to provide an opportunity for them to meet members of the Institutes, who are prominent in the field of chemistry.

This group was founded in 1952 by Dr. Samuel Madras, who also served as the Club's Honourary Chairman as did Prof. J. Ufford. Besides receiving full co-operation from the National CIC body, the Sir George group attends all the monthly meetings of the local parent chapter.

The College chapter has a total of 35 members and is not supported, financially, by the SUS but by their own membership fees. Outstanding speakers and topics this year included: Mr. Kenneth Bush from the Jewish General Hospital, speaking on, "Hospital Chemistry"; Mr. Leo Katz, on "The Uses of Radio-isotopes in Medicine", illustrated with a geiger counter and radio-active material; Mr. G. Wright, sales manager of B.A. Shawinigan Ltd., on "Chemistry", Tours were taken to various industrial plants throughout Quebec and Ontario and a demonstration was given at the College by the Ethyl Corporation on "Fire Power",

The CIC also partook in the Frosh Parade, Winter Carnival and Snow Sculpturing Contest, and last but not least the Club was finally recognized by the SUS, under the Clubs' Policy.

DEBATING SOCIETY

President: Eric McGregor

For those students who enjoy the art of forensics, the soap box has been placed at their disposal by the Debating Society. This club is by no means a newcomer on the extra-curricular scene but did have a face-lifting job this term. Policies and constitution were radically changed so that the Club switched from Day to "Joint" status, and membership as well as scope of activities were enlarged. Through the various debates both inter and intra-university, the members are afforded the opportunity to argue logically as well as to develop and improve their techniques in the field of public speaking.

One of the first testing grounds, on which the group more than ably argued, was the debate against Osgoode Hall on the topic, "Resolved that: Red China be admitted to the UN." The McGill Conference saw Sir George take third place when "Resolved that: Co-education is a Menace" was debated by representatives from Canadian universities. Highlight of all the verbal clashes was the International Debating Conference at which the Club rallied forth against fellow Canadian and American debaters to take second place on the resolution: "Peaceful Co-Existence Between the Soviet Bloc and the Western World is Possible".

The Debating Society lent themselves to many of the other College functions including the American Exchange and Brotherhood Week.

DRAMATIC CLUB

President: Barry King

The Dramatic Club, a Day Society, made its first appearance on the campus this year. Founded by students with a desire to put Sir George on the map in dramatic circles, the Club made a successful showing, which culminated in a two-night drama cycle, "Dream and Essence", produced in Budge Hall at the end of March.

The drama cycle took the form of two one-act plays — 'Aria da Capo', by Edna St. Vincent Millay, and 'Maker of Dreams'. Leading players were Hilda Taylor, Barry King, Wallace Henstridge, Fred Bild and David Trevil.

General organizational meetings were held throughout the year. Professor Clarke was guest speaker at one meeting, and spoke on the various problems encountered by dramatic clubs, with suggestions for their cure.

EVENING FACULTY WOMEN'S SOCIETY

President: Rebecca McIntyre

The EFWS had a comparatively inactive year, and was involved in only three College functions during the academic session. The first of these functions was the Society's Birthday Tea in October, at which Faculty members and fellow students were entertained.

At the Christmas Carol Service, held in Budge Hall, the Georgian Choral Group, and Christmas Pageant from local schools performed under the Society's auspices. Refreshments at this event were also served by the Society, and a similar service was performed at the Baccalaureate Tea in conjunction with the Day Faculty Women's Society.

The quiet year was rounded out by election of officers for the 1955-56 session, under whom a more active program is expected to materialize.

FILM SOCIETY

Co-Chairmen: James Jones (Day)
Bill Kinal (Evening)

The Day and Evening Film Society of Sir George Williams College has been in existence since 1948. An extensive program of nine showings was presented this year — among the outstanding were "Les Enfants Terribles," "Time In The Sun," "Salt Of The Earth", "The Search," and "All Quiet On The Western Front".

Emphasis was stressed in presenting more recent films from countries around the world — films that ordinarily do not appear in the movie houses on St. Catherine Street.

Films were looked upon and became, like textbooks, a medium of education, to stimulate interest and discussion apart from their artistic values, to learn about life and society.

Through close co-operation with other societies on the campus, the Film Society was able to assist the Asian Study Group, Literary Society and Alumni Association with advice, information, guidance and projection.

INTER VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

President: Gloria Kulbeck

The IVCF grew out of the movement in Britain called the "Cambridge Movement" whose purpose was to spread the Gospel. Here at Sir George, the group has been active since 1946 and is one of many similar groups throughout the world.

The IVCF fulfilled their aims and purposes this year by bringing to the campus such notables as Dr. Hyman Appelman, Prof. A. Gustance, Rev. Shem Irangi and Mr. Wilbur Sutherland, the National IVCF secretary.

Daily prayer meetings were held in the Chapel and weekly Bible Studies which included "Basic Christianity" and "Faith" were the fountainheads of the year's programme. Christmas and Easter Services were also held in the Chapel and the IVCF fully participated in Brotherhood Week.

As a token of appreciation and as a reward for the fine organization of their activities, the IVCF was runner up for the "Clubs' Trophy" and were awarded an SUS certificate for outstanding contribution to extra-curricular activities.

NEWMAN CLUB

President: Andy O'Brien

The Newman Club was founded on the Sir George Campus three years ago and by means of a three-fold programme: (1) religious, (2) social, and (3) cultural, has attempted to bring together all Catholic students at the College

Religious activities were held at Sacred Heart Convent and the Newman House and a closed retreat was offered before Lent to all members. Lectures on theology and apologetics were given every week by the Club's Chaplains.

Perhaps one of the most notable activities was the "Bring Christ Back to Christmas" campaign at which time a Christmas tree was erected in the Common Room, food gifts collected and distributed to families of the Catholic, Protestant and Jewish faiths.

Social activities were numerous including "open house" after athletic events, a sleigh ride party and the Newman Ball.

Newman Club also participated in Brotherhood Week and the "Music of the Faiths" programme as well as presenting many inspiring speakers.

PRE LAW SOCIETY

PRESIDENT: Doug Reed

A rather unique club made its appearance for the first time in the College's history in the form of a group of aspiring young lawyers to-be. The Pre Law Club was formed early in the second term to give those students desiring to enter Law, the opportunity to investigate and study their field of interest thoroughly. Though only a small group, at first, and a new-comer on the scene, the Pre Law Club made their presence felt on the Campus by a fine choice of programmes.

One of the major projects of the group was to form a law "library" containing pamphlets and requisites of all Canadian Law schools. Their first speaker was a former "Georgian", prominent Montreal lawyer, Mr. H. Adessky, who outlined the pros and cons involved in the Profession. The climax of their activities was a lecture by Mr. Pacifique Plante, Montreal's Assistant Director of Police.

STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT

President: Gerry McRae

The SCM is one of the oldest clubs on the Sir George Campus and is part of international Christian movement. It is interested, primarily, in problems of student life and in promoting a sense of responsibility to the Student Movement in other Canadian Universities. This year the Club took a further and more concentrated approach to the problems of Christian living in "the conviction that in Jesus Christ is found the supreme revelation of God and the means to the full realization of life".

Through study and prayer the SCM has well accomplished their purposes. Their programme consisted of weekly study groups, "The Meaning of the Church in Modern Society", "Christian Ethics in a Business World" and guest lecturers. Such well-known personalities as Mr. Ted Nichols and Mr. Lewis Perinbam spoke to the student body on "Is Ethics Religion" and "Formosa — Peace or War".

The SCM also participated in the McGill Mission, "Music of the Faiths" and Brotherhood Week.

UKRAINIAN CLUB

President: Leo Wynnyckyj

The Ukrainian Club, an Evening Society, saw its second year of activities in the 1954-55 season. This year's program was highlighted by Ukrainian Week in the College, which was held from February 21st - 26th.

Ukrainian Week was officially opened by Dean Hall, and events included guest speeches by Professor Paul Yuzyk, University of Manitoba, on "The Third Element in Canada", and Mr. John Decore, M.P., on "Russian Imperialism". A Ukrainian Cultural Evening was held in Budge Hall on February 25th. This particular program was highly successful, with some hundred people being turned away because of the limited facilities of the Hall.

The second Annual Ukrainian Ball, which was held at the Cercle Universitaire, climaxed the events of Ukrainian Week.

WEST INDIAN SOCIETY

President: Hyacinth Whittaker

Now in its second year as an officially recognized joint club of the Day and Evening Divisions, the West Indian Society proved to be as active and as co-operative this season as it was in its freshman year.

A full program for the college year helped realize once again the dual purpose of the Club, namely: to encourage West Indian consciousness among West Indians abroad, and to sponsor international relationship with other national groups on the campus.

Regular meetings; social events, including the now established Christmas Party; debating sessions, and active participation as a group in such activities as the Winter Carnival, all formed part of the Club program.

A sub-division of the West Indian Society, the popularity of which is molding it into an institution at Sir George, is the Calypso Group; the success of many of the smaller college dances can be attributed in some part to the fine performances of this Group's entertainers.

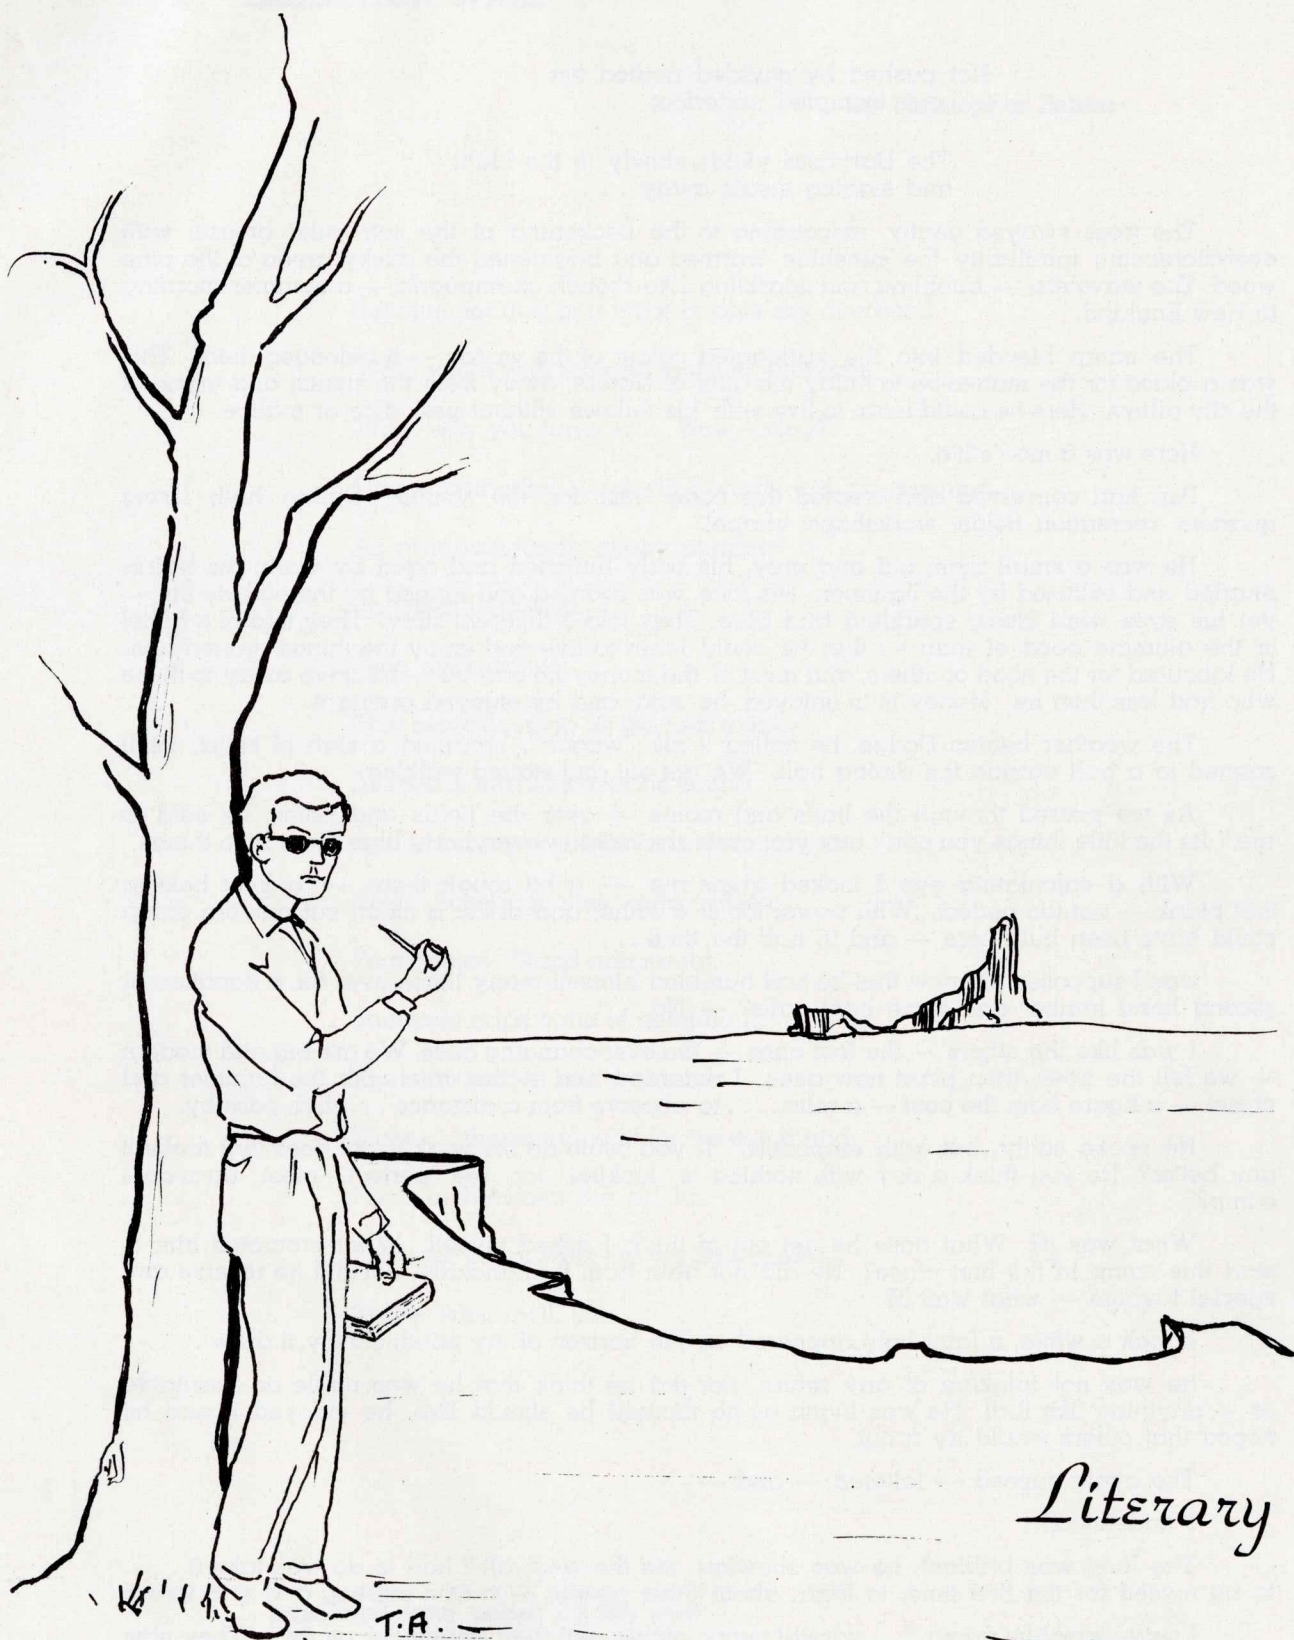

WOMEN'S CLUB

President: Muriel Tedstone

Originally organized by the Evening Division women in the late 1930's, the Day Women's Club is now a separate, independent club, financed by the SUS and having official representation on that body, as well. Boasting a membership of over 100 women in the Day Division, the Club prime function is to organize and sponsor activities for all female students. As there is no Women's residence, or Women's Dean and as the women students are greatly outnumbered by the males, the Club also serves as the official voice of all the co-eds; hence the distaff side is represented on the Students' Council, too.

During Frosh Week, the girls held a luncheon to welcome all incoming girls and acted as guides during the "tours of inspection".

The social activities are always the highlights of the girls' programming and included this year a Christmas Tea Dance, Christmas Carol Services, the collection of food baskets for needy families, and the annual Sadie Hawkins' Week shenanigans which are climaxed by the election of a Daisy Mae and L'il Abner and a women's issue of "The Georgian". In conjunction with the Evening Women's Club, the girls in the day College took full responsibility for organizing the Baccalaureate Tea.

HE ENTERED

by h. d. clarke

Not pushed by studded mailed fist
nor trampled underfoot

The Darkness yields slowly to the Light and sighing steals away

The trees swayed gently, responding to the beckoning of the soft quiet breeze; with ever-increasing familiarity the sunshine warmed and brightened the dusky green of the pine wood. The wavelets; — bubbling and sparkling like French champagne — a summer morning in New England.

The camp blended into the variegated colour of the woods — it belonged there. This was a place for the man-to-be to enjoy the gifts of Nature, away from the stench and grime of the city alleys. Here he could learn to live with his fellows without prejudice or malice.

Here was a man's life.

Pop had conceived and created this camp just for the young. Dining hall; living quarters; recreation fields; workshops; chapel.

He was a small man, old and grey, his body hunched and aged by work, his hands gnarled and callused by the hammer. His face was seamed and tanned by the outside life — yet his eyes were clear; sparkling and blue. They told a different story. They told of a belief in the ultimate good of man — that he could learn to live and enjoy the things around him. He laboured for the good of others, and most of the money he earned — he gave away to those who had less than he. Money is to be enjoyed, he said, and he enjoyed giving it.

The weather beaten Dodge, he called it his "wagon", breathed a sigh of relief, as it sagged to a halt outside the dining hall. We got out and started walking.

As we passed through the halls and rooms — over the fields and paths, he said to me, "Its the little things you can't buy that costs the most — everybody likes them little things".

With a calculating eye I looked about me — a bit rough there — a knot hole in that plank — not too perfect. With power tools; a lathe; and drills; a clean cut modern camp could have been built here — and in half the time was I supposed to know that he had humbled himself many times over for a donation of second hand lumber and some bent nails? — No.

I was like the others — the fast ones — the ever-changing ones. We are big and modern — we fell the trees, then plant new ones. I regarded him — the artist with the hammer and chisel — a figure from the past — a relic to observe from a distance . . . then pass by.

He spoke softly, but with emphasis, "If you could do the work faster does that make it any better? Do you think a boy with nothing is looking for the perfect, most up-to-date camp?"

What was it? What does he get out of this?, I asked myself. What prompted him to start this camp in the first place? He did not gain from it financially, nor did he receive any special favours — what was it?

It took a while, a faint light appeared on the horizon of my mind, slowly it grew he was not thinking of any return, nor did he think that he was noble or charitable or — anything like that. He was living as he thought he should live, he enjoyed it and he hoped that others would try it out.

The cynic gasped — faltered — and —

I understood.

The light was brilliant, he was showing me the way, all I had to do was take it to be myself for the first time, to learn about other people — to stop existing and start living.

I never saw him again nor did many others, yet they remember as do I. They saw in him breathing evidence of a living philosophy of life, it caught on to them and hung tenaciously, growing — growing until they too could show others the way.

He came . . . not with crashing cymbals; not with rolling drums nor screaming horns — no flags — bunting; no honours, no applause; but quietly — softly — he entered . . . my life.

EXECUTION WALL

by christopher liebert

Hot summer day and piece of blue sky overhead

Wall, white with the sun, looks in your face

Why, why you have to . . . Now, today?

Cause, patriotism — whirling words with no meaning,

As your own funny, shaky, shadow

On execution wall.

Time approaches.

Split seconds jump as the heartbeats;

Silence is intensified to the sound,

And soft body waits for hot stream of pain.

Now. Sound of their guns raised:

Fear comes. Stand and sweat.

Someone grips hand of neighbour,

The man next in line . . . to die.

They . . . the squad wait for the command.

From in between the bricks,

From the crack went out the little spider;

Spider which will live.

BUT NEVER TWICE

by robert jones

The soldier cursed softly at the rain that bounced off his helmet and his face. It rolled and splashed down his arms in little streams and ripples, and it filled his heavy leather boots so that they squished when he walked. He tried to light a cigarette, but it broke in the wetness of his fingers and he threw it away into the night. It landed in a rain-washed gully and flowed swiftly along with the tiny current until he could see it no longer. It was his last cigarette.

The soldier pushed steadily through the brush towards the north, and as he walked he kept his gun ready at his hip, swinging the barrel slowly and rhythmically from side to side. At times he would stop and kneel, probing the blackness ahead until he was sure that it was safe to continue.

But despite his caution he was unprepared for it. He caught the glint of light from the blue steel barrel and he stopped, startled into immobility, staring stupidly, until it roared. There was a stinging pain in his chest as he fell and rolled over in the water and the mud.

It was day when he awoke — The rain had stopped. Strangely he felt stronger than he had for weeks. He was lying on his back and for a long moment he did not attempt to move. Instead he lay still, relishing the quietness and the peace of the moment. He could see a group of white clouds high above him and he watched them until they had drifted beyond his line of sight. Then he pushed himself to his feet, brushing the dried mud from his uniform and stretching slowly, testing each arm and leg. He shrugged his shoulders with disbelief. There was no blood and no pain even when he rubbed his hands across his chest.

He found his gun beside a little brown bush that created a little rain burst when he shook it with his hand. He picked the gun up and threw it over his shoulder. It had a comfortable feeling on his back.

"You wont need that now", said a voice from behind him.

For a moment he was surprised, then he threw himself at the ground, rolling to one side and wrenching the gun from his shoulder. "Caught once, but never twice", he thought.

It was a wasted effort. His unexpected companion was standing unarmed and unconcealed about twenty feet away. He was old, very old, with deep creases plowed along his forehead. He was smiling and stepping forwards, extended his hand.

"Stay where yuh are".

"I was merely going to assist you to your feet", replied the old man.

"Don't bother — I'll get myself up".

The old man smiled blissfully. "You are now in a position to do as you please", he answered.

"Yuh aint kiddin'," said the soldier, "I got the gun".

The old man sighed heavily. "This is always so hard," he complained aloud, "and the council is so dissatisfied with my work". He turned to the soldier. "It's people like you", he scolded, "that take the fun out of things. You just don't need that gun now".

The soldier waved the gun menacingly. "Yuh can quit the babbling right now and git out a-here", he commanded, "Go on-scam, beat it, GIT".

"I want you only to come with me as far as that hilltop," he waved his hand behind him, pointing, "then you are free to make your own decisions".

The soldier stepped forward angrily, tired of the old man. He butted the old man in the chest with the gun and laughed loudly as the old man slipped to the ground.

The old man regained his feet and attempted to regain his dignity. "Goodness gracious", he exclaimed, "the council will be angry when I turn in my report". His old eyes stared out at the soldier and there was no fear in them. "I do believe you are afraid to come with me", he cajoled.

The soldier reached forward and grabbed the old man by one bony arm. "Okay, he said impatiently, "Yuh walk ahead of me, see, and when we git to the hill there, you leave".

The old man did not answer, but turned and walked up a hidden path towards the hill. For nearly an hour they walked steadily, the soldier always a few steps behind, and during that time neither spoke. When they had reached the top the old man stopped and waved his arm, said, "Look, look there".

The soldier passed the old man and stood at the peak of the hill, watching silently.

"It is beautiful, isn't it", the old man whispered, "simple, but marvellous. It's odd, but we all think of it in a different way until we are here, and then we can not picture it in any other way".

The soldier stooped and placed his gun on the ground. Then he turned to the old man, and asked, "Will you go down with me?"

"There's no need of that", laughed the old man, "Your arrival is scheduled and there are others I must bring. I'm only the doorman, you know".

"What's your name, old man", questioned the soldier, "I think I know".

The old man smiled again. "Peter", he said.

MAGNUS FLYNN, DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS

Any successful athletic program sponsored by a College revolves about participation. Here at Sir George the season begins early in April and proceeds at a rapid pace throughout the entire school year. The curriculum of activities includes almost ever popular American sport, from Golf, Tennis, and Track and Field in the Autumn through Basketball, Hockey, and Volleyball in the Winter Months. These sports are contested not only by Intercollegiate teams but in a network of interfaculty competitions and leagues. Almost everyone gets a chance to compete for the school or for his faculty before the year ends.

Early in the Fall, Golf captured the Sports headlines. Trevor Lloyd and Bob Hill shared the School championship, shooting 88's on a soggy, wet Town of Mount Royal Course. Garry DeGeer and Garry Hillhouse completed the four-man team which represented Sir George in the Intercollegiate Tourney at Lennoxville the next weekend. The team finished fifth in the tournament, many strokes behind the winning Loyola College team. A score of 80 by Bob Hill was the best individual performance by a Georgian.

The spotlight quickly switched to Walter Ball and the Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament that was to be held in Ottawa. Ball won the Georgian crown when he defeated Eric Rothfleisch 7-5 at the N.D.G. courts. Rothfleisch, an evening student, was ineligible to compete in the Ottawa meet and Jack Silver, Arnie Greenberg, and Joe Dumouchel were picked to complete the four men team. However the Intercollegiate meet was doomed to failure. A storm in Ottawa swamped the Tel Aviv courts where the Tournament was to have been held. New arrangements could not be made and the Tournament was cancelled.

The weather, which had already disrupted both the Golf and Tennis tournaments, was to plague the Track and Field as well. The Georgian Team was only able to pick up fourteen points at the meet, held in rain-soaked Richardson Memorial Stadium in Kingston. Queens University won the meet with a 66 point total. Abe Limonchick was the best performer for the Georgians, picking up seven points with a first in the Discus and a fourth in both the Shot Put and the Javelin. George McIntosh added five points to the Georgian total with a second in the 880 event and a third in the Mile run. The only other individual point-getter was Perry Sandberg who placed fourth in the Javelin. Les Melia, George McIntosh, Morty Bistrisky and John Scott combined to take fourth place in the Relay race.

Of all the Intercollegiate Sports sponsored at Sir George, Basketball is always the most popular. Sir George sponsors a Men's Day College Team, a Men's Evening College Team, a Men's Junior team, and a Girl's Team. With the exception of the Juniors, all had successful years. The Day College Team, playing in the Ottawa-St. Lawrence Valley Conference, won eight games and lost only two to end in a first place tie. The Evening Team won their section of the Montreal Basketball League Section B and then combined with the Day Team to win City and Provincial Championships. The Girl's Team, not to be outdone, whipped McGill in a two game-total point series to win the Junior Section of the Montreal Women's Basketball League.

Early in the year it became apparent that Georgian Basketball teams would be strong contenders for league honors in almost every bracket. The Day College team, boasting a hord of new faces, entered the Senior Golden Ball Tournament, usually considered a notch above the Intercollegiate league. They proved their strength by whipping McGill Seniors and by taking DeLasalles, 1953-54 City Senior Champions, to two overtime periods before losing. In the Intercollegiate League the Georgians won first place honors, and then bowed out in the finals, losing to Royal Military College. Five members of the Day Team, Alec Mikalachki, Jack Silver, Pat Baker, Bob 'Garipey, and Don Bryant combined with five members of the Evening team, Ron Hodgeman, Jim Ellimo, David Watson, Bob McCaffrey, Harold Stackhouse, and Edward Knight, to form a truly representative Sir George Williams College Team. This team won the City M.B.L. championship easily and then travelled to Three Rivers, where they won the Provincial Title by defeating the Three Rivers Comets in the final.

The Georgian Intercollegiate Hockey team had an unsuccessful year and is faced with a serious problem in the years to come. Only two defensement will be returning next year as Abe Limonchick, John Killingbeck, and Rody Watt all are graduating students. On the forward line Garnet Robinson, Bruce Robson, Mark Vineberg, and Mac Cross have played their last games as Georgians. The loss of so many graduating students is a serious blow to a team which only managed to win one game in eight starts.

Despite the successes of the Intercollegiate teams, Interfaculty competitions managed to stimulate and excite the interest of the College. Both the Volleyball and the Basketball leagues were featured by repeat winners. The Arts team won the Volleyball championship by defeating a new team, the Bookstore, in the finals. And for the second year in a row, Science squeezed the Scribes to win the Basketball honors.

The Janna Trophy awarded for athletics at the Winter Carnival was won jointly by Al Crowley and Les Melia.

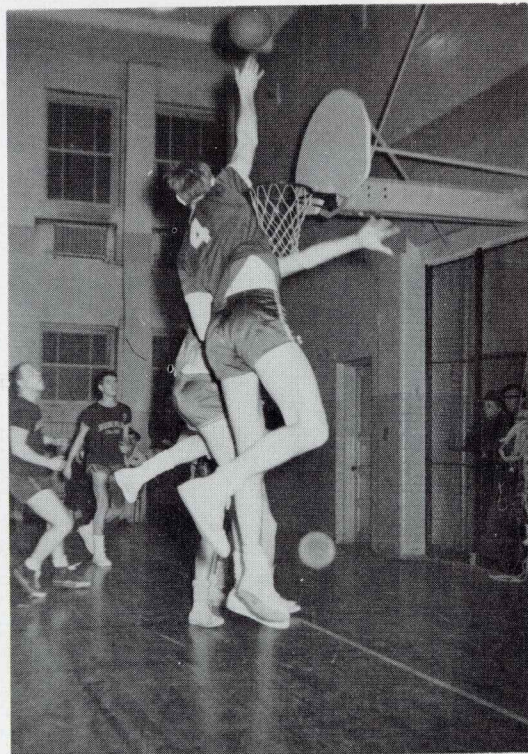

On April 13, the athletic year officially closed with the presentation of awards and trophies. Over 150 awards were passed out reflecting the active participation and student interest in the Georgian athletic program. The Gill Trophy, awarded to the athlete who best combines playing ability with good sportsmanship, was won by Miss Fran Williams. Miss Williams, who captured every badminton championship in sight also led the Ladies Basketball team to the league championship.

The Allan Smith Memorial Trophy for Hockey was won jointly by Alex Gilbert, a first year student and John Killingbeck, a graduating student. Don Briant became the first winner of the Thompson Trophy, awarded to the basketball player who shows the greatest improvement during the course of the year. The Joyce Trophy for Fencing was won by Tomi Szawlowski.

In the field of Individual Interfaculty sports Badminton was the most popular. Tournaments are held throughout the year on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons. This year's winners include; Fran Williams, Women's Singles, Bob Simpson, Men's Singles, Dick Lee and Fran Williams, Mixed Doubles, Fran Williams and Gwen Lord, Women's Doubles, and Earl Laviolette and Bob Simpson, Men's Doubles.

The Sir George Williams Rifle Club competes during the year on an invitation basis, playing both local and Intercollegiate competitions. Outstanding for the Georgians was Irving Huss. Huss was awarded a Dominion Gold Marksman Medal.

The Annual Winter Carnival, held in early February, was its usual success. During the three day tournament crisp, cold weather prevailed and throngs of Georgians flocked to the mountain and other centres of activity. Broomball, skiing, snowshoeing, and Woodsmen competitions were all held in the fast moving Carnival. The Faculty managed to win the Broomball competition by some minor miracle while Al Crowley staggered to the Snow Shoeing award. A. Reaper triumphed in the combined skiing while Y. Papineau won the slalom and R. Lafreniere took the downhill honors. The Woodsmen competition was won by the Science team who defeated the Faculty, 53-54 champs.

UNITED NATIONS CLUB

President: Bill Kinal

The underlying philosophy permeating the United Nations Club is a greater comprehension of the interests of humanity and an intelligent understanding of other peoples affairs.

The Club endeavors to realize this goal by holding study groups, panel discussions and film shows. All of these activities give its members a wider appreciation of the vital role played by international organization in the world in which they live. The Club has also sent delegations to other Universities to participate in model U.N. Assemblies. This practical experience in representing different countries on current international issues, under real U.N. procedure, has an important intellectual value in the understanding of the reasons why various countries take the positions they actually do.

This year the Club, representing Iran, received the highest award at St. Lawrence University in New York State for outstanding representation and knowledge of international affairs. In February they successfully accomplished a major achievement in co-sponsoring a model Security Council in Montreal, in which eleven Universities participated. Intra-mural meetings were held once a month, on average.

Fred Walsh, a leading member of the Club's Executive, was made recipient of the Evening Clubs Major Award, one of the highest extra-curricular awards in the College, for his major part in the outstanding achievements of the Club both on the campus and at other Universities; Miss Barbara Hamill received an EUS Clubs Honorable Mention for her efficient work as Secretary of the Club and as Secretary-General of the model Security Council.

canada and YOU

Whatever your plans for the future, as a young Canadian, you stand in a particularly advantageous position. Canada is on the move, with huge power developments, new pipe lines, the seaway begun, and other large projects underway. And these developments are matched by the establishment of hundreds of smaller manufacturing plants and by the growth of older firms throughout the whole of Canada. This growth means opportunity to those who prepare themselves to meet the challenges that lie ahead.

Standing as you do, on the threshold of a new era, you are Canada's hope for the future . . . and that future has never appeared brighter.

SOME FACTS ABOUT STELCO:

- ★ Stelco is Canada's largest steel producer.
- ★ Stelco is over 90% Canadian owned.
- ★ Stelco paid out $100,776,040.00 to other firms for materials and services in 1953.
- ★ Stelco has spent more than $181,000,000.00 in its continuous expansion programme.

SAGA OF CANADIAN ENTERPRISE

The Barley and the Stream

THE MOLSON STORY

by Merrill Denison

NO WIND or tide can stop her", proclaimed the Quebec Mercury in reporting the maiden voyage of John Molson's Accommodation in November, 1809.

The story of Canada's first steamboat is but one of the fascinating accounts of historic events intertwined in this saga of a great Canadian company — the oldest brewery on the North American continent, and quite possibly the very oldest enterprise conducted in its original location by descendants of its founder.

Steamboats and Canada's first railway, banking, a theatre and hotels, leadership in the development of university and hospital — all these and many other activities have been part of the Molson story. Yet through the years its basic theme has always remained the same: the ever-expanding brewery from which have come the famous products which have continued to bring pleasure to succeeding generations of Canadians since 1786.

Merrill Denison, who tells the colourful story with practised skill and a wealth of detail, is recognized as one of the outstanding recorders of industrial history on the continent.

Published in Canada by McClelland and Stewart, "The Barley and the Stream" is also available in French as "Au Pied du Courant".
